Wild, Wild Wet! - Dangerous Minds (English/SOSE)

Overview: In this authentic task, students get the chance to examine actual water samples taken from the Redcliffe region in order to draw conclusions about the quality of the water around us. They will use their findings to create a visual journalistic response, to inform the community about “What’s really in our water?” This fun and engaging task provides opportunities to nurture student curiosity and their wonder about the world through the lens of the humanities areas of Geography, English and History.

Students will also be working in our newest humanities area of Philosophy. This fascinating new area allows students to engage in higher order thinking activities and improve their ability to reason and justify opinions and decisions using real-life scenarios.

Transitioning to Redcliffe State High School

Step Up Information for Parents

Transition to high school is a period of change that can be both challenging and exciting, in which children and families adjust to new roles, identities and expectations, new interactions and new relationships (DEECD, 2011).

Research has identified the 7 key issues that affect students as they transition from primary school to high school. They are:

1. The challenge of new procedures
2. New types of learning activities
3. The role of peer
4. The role of homework
5. Feelings of success and confidence
6. The role of teachers
7. The role of school support

Research has also shown that the feeling of connectedness to secondary school was a significant predictor of academic and health outcomes. Higher connectedness to school was related to fewer classroom and peer problems, fewer emotional problems and greater pro-social skills.

The Step Up to Redcliffe High program was designed to build on the confidence Year 6 students gained by visiting the school for Transition Day in March. Step Up now allows students to get to know some teachers, have more confidence moving about the school, learn about different teacher delivery styles and to develop their confidence and expectations of success.
